Southeastern Regional Fruit & Vegetable Conference

The South Carolina Department of Agriculture reminds fruit and vegetable industry growers, suppliers, and vendors that they are invited to attend the largest educational conference and trade show in the southeastern United States. The Southeastern Regional Fruit & Vegetable Conference will be held in Savannah, Ga., on Jan. 7-10, 2010, at the Savannah International Trade and Convention Center.

The Southeastern Regional Conference is sponsored by the Georgia Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association and the Georgia Peach Council in partnership with 16 other public and private organizations including Clemson University, SC Department of Agriculture Certified Roadside Market Program, SC Muscadine Growers, SC Peach Council, SC Strawberry Growers, and the SC Fruit & Vegetable Association.

Specialized educational sessions will be held focusing on topics related to peaches, vegetables, Vidalia onions, organic production, blackberries, raspberries, strawberries, muscadine grapes, pecans, public safety, food safety, and roadside markets.

Whether discovering new products and services on the trade show floor, learning about the latest produce trends at one of the educational programs, or attending one of the special events throughout the weekend, participants will be in the midst of some of the best in the Southeast.

Ridge Spring Chosen as Ag Conference Host - hosted by SC National Heritage Corridor and the SC Department of Agriculture

Ridge Spring has been chosen to host the South Carolina National Heritage Corridor's (SCNHC) Bi-annual Agricultural Conference, a day-long educational event for South Carolina farmers.

Ridge Spring was chosen because of the community's dedication to supporting local farmers and the agriculture industry and the presence of facilities to meet the conference's needs. The Ridge Spring Civic Center and the Arts Center will fill with farmers and agricultural partners from across the state on Wednesday, January 27, 2010.

Elizabeth Harm, development director for the SCNHC, said Ridge Spring's enthusiasm as a potential conference site helped secure the town as the chosen destination. "The people's pride in their community, their farming heritage and the various products grown and made right here in Ridge Spring is apparent and that made the decision easy." Harm added that Saluda County is the third largest agricultural producer in the state. "This is a way to give back to a community in Saluda County, a county that gives so much to our state and nation every day."

School garden grant recipients announced

The SC Department of Agriculture and Hugh Weathers, Commissioner, announce the recipients of the 2010 Eat Smart, It's in the Garden mini-grant program to start or improve a school vegetable garden.

The nine recipients of a $1,000 grant are: Holly Springs Elementary, Pickens; Gray Court-Owings Elementary, Gray Court; Ford Elementary, Laurens; Okatie Elementary, Beaufort; Nevitt Forest, Anderson; York Technical College, Rock Hill; Summit Drive Elementary, Greenville; Stone Academy, Greenville; and Hendersonville Elementary, Walterboro.

The 2009 grant recipients will also continue their school garden programs with $500 grants at their respective schools, as well as serving as mentors and resources for the nine new grant recipients. The mentors are: Pontiac Elementary, Elgin; Central Child Development Center, Rock Hill; Mellichamp Elementary, Orangeburg; Birchwood Middle School, DJJ and Pauline-Glenn Springs, Pauline.

The Eat Smart, It's in the Garden mini-grant program is a partnership between the non-profit Eat Smart, Move More SC and the SC Department of Agriculture that encourages schools to incorporate school gardens, healthy eating habits and agricultural appreciation into their school communities. The grant period runs from January 1 to June 30, 2010.

50 by 20 - a ten year goal for South Carolina agribusiness

Did someone say that a whole decade of the new century has come and gone? I imagine we're all wondering where the time goes. Nevertheless, 2010 is here and marks the dawn of a new decade - hopefully, the beginning of recovery to prosperity and growth for our state and nation. Historically, agriculture and forestry have been the foundation of our nation's economy.

Just a couple of weeks ago at the USC Economic Outlook Conference, agribusiness was pointed out to be an area of tremendous potential for South Carolina to rebuild its economy. If this prediction and if history holds true, agribusiness will continue to play a significant role in the economic recovery process.

Economic research recently has confirmed that the total economic impact of agribusiness-that is agriculture, forestry and its allied industries in South Carolina-is nearly $34 billion a year and creates almost 200,000 jobs. The question is, "Can the economic impact value increase $16 billion to $50 billion per year by 2020? If so, what will it take to get there?"

Agribusiness leaders across the state have been working with me on a concept and strategic theme that we call 50 by 20 - a ten year goal for South Carolina agribusiness. The farm-gate increase is expected to come from potential growth areas of alternative energy production,

capitalizing on the food economy, and increasing trade. If history teaches anything, it is to realize that the markets in 2009 may not resemble those a decade from now; so we add 'the unknown' to this list.

Based on initial analysis, four general areas of emphasis have been identified to incorporate toward reaching the goal of 50 by 20.

The first of those four areas of emphasis is Agribusiness Economic Development. We need new tools and incentives that work for agribusiness recruitment. To enhance this effort, we can identify specific industries that make sense for South Carolina such as alternative energy, food processing, value added industries, forest products and new producers.

Developing Markets, whether domestic or export, is another key area of emphasis to providing additional production opportunities for producers. We have a good start with our Certified SC Grown marketing and branding program. It has been embraced by consumers and buyers across the state and up and down the East Coast. We cannot let this momentum wane.

South Carolina has world class port facilities that give us an edge as we seek new markets in international trade. Investing in grain exporting facilities could be a boom not only for South Carolina but for the whole southern region. Acres of wheat grown in South Carolina was three times the current number when the grain facility was operated.

The third key area of emphasis is Expansion of Existing Industries. New jobs and capital investments most often come from the expansion of existing industries. We have vital agribusiness industries in forest products, poultry processing, greenhouse/nursery, and fruit and vegetable processing that are quite significant in some counties and employ thousands of workers. We need to encourage the expansion of these industries and make sure that the business climate is open and conducive to growth and development.

Finally, Investments in Technology Improvements and Research is essential. Breakthroughs in technology can take us down paths we could only imagine just a few years ago. Basic and applied research can determine the viability of new high value crops and can find new uses for traditional crops. It is an important link as we look out ten years to determine what is possible in the agribusiness industry.

If we are going to reach the goal of $50 billion impact by 2020, a concerted and strategic effort will be needed. I don't claim to have all the ideas that are needed but I believe the 50 by 20 framework provides a strategic structure that we can build on to find the means to move the agribusiness industry forward and achieve great things for the future.

We are proud of the heritage of agribusiness in South Carolina. In addition, we point to its present day contribution to the economic and environmental health of our state and the quality of life that our citizens enjoy. But everyone who enjoys the benefits of agriculture - food, feed, fiber and fuel - should know that agribusiness is focused on the future, not the past.

Looking forward . . . Ring in the New Year - the new decade - with the belief that the 50 by 20 strategy provides a clear vision for the future - a ten year goal for South Carolina agribusiness.

Hugh E. Weathers, Commissioner

Wetlands Reserve Program Sign Up

Landowners in South Carolina with eligible acreage are encouraged to apply for technical and funding assistance available through the voluntary Wetlands Reserve Program by February 1.

Those who choose to participate in the Wetlands Reserve Program (WRP) may sell a conservation easement or enter into a cost-share restoration agreement with USDA to restore and protect wetlands. The landowner voluntarily limits future use of the land, yet retains private ownership. With landowner input, NRCS develops a plan for the restoration and maintenance of the wetland. WRP targets land which was formerly wetland and where planned restoration has the potential to maximize wildlife habitat, improve water quality, and aid in the recovery of special status species.

Landowners interested in participating in WRP should contact their local NRCS conservationist to begin the application process. For more information, visit your local USDA-NRCS office, or call Glenn Sandifer, SC NRCS Program Specialist, at 803-253-3894, or email glenn.sandifer@sc.usda.gov.

South Carolina Waste Pesticide Recovery Collection Successful

Hugh Weathers, South Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture, is pleased to report that nearly 48,000 pounds of unwanted, out-of-date agricultural pesticides were collected December 8, 9, and 10 in the Florence, Alcolu, and Orangeburg areas.

Farmers, foresters and nurserymen were invited to bring all agricultural pesticides, labeled or not, to one of the three sites. Pesticides include insecticides, herbicides, nematicides, fungicides and other similar products used in commercial agricultural production. No fertilizers, household chemicals, compressed cylinders or empty containers were accepted.

Commissioner Weathers said, "That brings the total we've collected in the South Carolina Waste Pesticide Recovery Program to 294,075 pounds. I appreciate the assistance of partners such as the SC Farm Bureau and Clemson Extension Service in helping make this collection happen. This has been a valuable effort for our farmers and for the environment."

2008 Aquaculture Grant Program - ARRA provides funds to assist producer losses

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (ARRA) has authorized the South Carolina Department of Agriculture to administer the 2008 Aquaculture Grant Program (2008 AGP). The 2008 AGP will assist eligible aquaculture producers that suffered losses associated with high feed input costs during the 2008 calendar year.

Assistance may be provided to aquaculture producers that meet the following criteria:

- Aquaculture producers must have been in production during calendar year 2008 and actively engaged in production in 2009.
- Eligible producers must verify that their feed costs during 2008 represented at least 25 percent of their total input costs.
- The 2008 price of feed paid for by eligible producers must be at least 25 percent greater than the state's five-year average for each aquaculture species.

To determine producer eligibility, the SC Department of Agriculture requests that aquaculture producers with losses complete and return an application along with supporting documentation from their feed provider (total tons purchased and average feed cost per ton for 2008).

Producers who need an application or who have questions regarding eligibility should contact Chad Truesdale, SCDA Aquaculture Marketing Specialist, 803-734-2210.

South Carolina Nursery & Landscape Association to Meet in Myrtle Beach

The South Carolina Nursery & Landscape Association will hold their annual seminar program and trade show February 4-6, at the Myrtle Beach Convention Center. The event is open to those in the nursery, landscape, garden center industry and related fields.

The Carolinas Irrigation Association will be offering re-certification credits on Thursday of the event. The SCNLA Certified Nursery professional Test will also be given. Some of the featured seminar topics will include: Opportunities at the Cutting Edge of Efficient Landscape Irrigation, Sustainable Landscapes, Outstanding Recent Tree, Shrub, and Perennial Selections and Phasing Out Non-native Plants from Our Landscapes and many more. A complete listing of the seminars and all other events is available at www.scnla.com. There is also a link to register for the 3-day event.

The South Carolina Nursery & Landscape Association is a trade association dedicated to supporting the green industry by providing education, legislative monitoring, certification and marketing – investing in research, environmental stewardship, and scholarship to ensure a secure future. For more information visit www.scnla.com or call 864-592-3868.

Agricultural tour offered to Newfoundland

AgVentures is offering an agricultural tour of Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland July 22-29. This tour will include visits to a Gouda cheese facility, oyster shucking demonstration, potato farms, local berries farms, beef cattle and hay operations, and organic vegetables and herb farms. For further information, contact Roy Copelan at 803-479-4999.

Southeastern

The 2010 trade show will allow participants to compare products, talk with industry representatives, observe demonstrations, learn about the latest in fresh produce technology, and network with other growers.

The General Session on Saturday will have several special guests and speakers, including several members of the U.S. Congress (confirmation of the speakers will be made in December based on congressional schedules for January). In addition to the legislative updates, individuals and groups will be recognized for their accomplishments and contributions to the fruit and vegetable industry.

Registration fees vary by day and program. For more information or to register for the conference, visit <http://www.gfvga.org>.

Ridge Spring

The conference kicks off at 9:00 a.m. with Hugh Weathers, SC Commissioner of Agriculture, and keynote speaker Diane Green of Greentree Naturals, a small family owned and Certified Organic Farm in Sandpoint, Idaho. Green will discuss how family owned and operated farms can successfully market the product of their labor and the farm as a destination. For more information about Diane Green and her farm operation, visit www.greentreenaturals.com.

Following the keynote address, sessions topics will include: Marketing While Operating a Successful Farm; Using the Internet for Free Marketing; Tax Liability in Running an Agricultural Operation; and Food Safety in Selling Homemade Products.

Chef Brandon Velie's use of local ingredients and his continuous support of the local agriculture industry by his restaurant Juniper in Ridge Spring will be highlighted through a lunch made with local produce.

The conference, open to anyone interested in agritourism, is $25 for those who register before January 15, and $35 after that date or at the door. To register, visit www.sc-heritage-corridor.org and click on 2010 Agricultural Conference.

This event is sponsored by the SC National Heritage Corridor, www.sc-heritagecorridor.org, and the SC Department of Agriculture, www.agriculture.sc.gov.
